Find No Evidence of Quashed Charges, Fines In County Watered Down

Committee Makes Report to Board on Law Enforcement

A committee from the Saline County Board of Supervisors yesterday reported that it found no instances of charges being quashed or fines being watered down by Saline county law-enforcement agencies, as had been charged last month by a group of ministers.

The committee, which made its report to the January meeting of the board at the court house, said, however, that there should be more strenuous action taken to collect unpaid fines which are on the books.

Aubrey Giles, Eldorado, gave the main report following the probe into charges of lax law enforcement made by the ministers at the December meeting. The committee was ordered to investigate after the charges were made and report back to the January meeting.

All Are Cooperative
"The committee met with the ministers, who were very reasonable," Giles began. "The state's attorney, county judge and sheriff also were very co-operating, offering their books to us to determine if the charges made could be substantiated."

Then after declaring that "there is something back of all this and that the ministers are on the right road," he said:

"We went through the docket and our investigation reveals that no charges have been quashed or fines watered down."

"However, authorities should be more strenuous in the collection of fines," Giles continued. "We found too many unpaid fines and believe that drastic action should be taken to collect them. The com-

Snow Spreads to East; N. Y. Fuel Strike Ends

By United Press
Winter's biggest snowstorm swept into the East today, leaving a heavy snow cover from Texas to the Atlantic Seaboard.

The storm already had claimed six lives.

It snarled traffic half way across the nation and broke serious droughts in some areas.

The snowstorm hit New York City as a fuel deliverers' strike ended.

Mayor Robert Wagner announced settlement of the four-day walkout of fuel oil and coal truck drivers early today. Earlier he had threatened to declare a state of emergency in the shivering, fuel-short city.

A fuel emergency committee reported it handled more than 500 "hardship" requests for fuel, including four houses sheltering premature babies.

Hot water was cut off in some apartment houses and a 60-family building on Madison Avenue was down to 11 buckets of borrowed coal.

Three to five inches of snow was forecast for New York City. Elsewhere, there was four inches at Baltimore, Md., and five inches in central Pennsylvania. A mixture of rain, sleet or freezing rain coated the Carolinas and Virginia.

The big storm was born in the Gulf of Mexico and struck first at Texas, where two deaths occurred and as much as 15 inches of snow piled up. The storm rolled northeastward, breaking serious droughts in some areas and dumping 8 inches of snow on the southern Illinois city of Cairo.

Icy weather hovered behind the storm front. It was 19 below zero at Minot, N. D., today and 25 above as far south as Fort Worth, Tex.

U. S. District Judge Adair Dies

QUINCY, Ill. (U. S. Dist. Judge J. LeRoy Adair, 68, died unexpectedly Thursday at his home after serving 17 years on the federal bench.

Adair had remained at home for the past 10 days after contracting a cold. He last appeared in court Jan. 4.

The judge was a former congressman and a graduate of the University of Michigan law school. He was appointed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt as federal district judge of the northern division of southern Illinois in 1939.

His district included Rock Island, Moline, Kewanee, Galesburg, Pekin and Pontiac. He is survived by his widow Maude.

His death brings about the second vacancy on the federal bench in downstate Illinois. District Judge Fred L. Wham, 72, Centralia, has announced he is retiring March 1.

Three Senators Ask Review of Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (U. S. — Two Democratic senators and one Republican today proposed a full congressional review of foreign policy as a result of the election of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' "brink-of-war" statement.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont), a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, planned to take the Senate floor to propose a "complete review" of foreign policy.

Another committee member, Sen. John J. Sparkman (D-Ala.), told reporters that "we are going to have to re-examine the facts" of foreign policy in light of the furore over Dulles' statement and President Eisenhower's all-out defense of his secretary of state.

Mr. Eisenhower said at his news conference Thursday that he considers Dulles the best secretary of state he has ever known. He said he has complete faith in Dulles as a man devoted to peace.

But Dulles came under immediate attack in the Senate from a member of his own party's more conservative wing, Sen. William E. Jenner (R-Ind.). Jenner described Dulles as an "identical twin" of Dean G. Acheson, President Truman's secretary of state who was a frequent Jenner target. Jenner called for a "complete reexamination" of foreign policy by Congress.

But Dulles was defended by Sen. William Langer (R-N.D.), an unpredictable Foreign Relations Committee member who frequently criticizes the Eisenhower administration.

Langer said that "there is a feeling of secretary that as long as Dwight Eisenhower is in the White House there isn't going to be any war, even if his secretary of state may have taken us to the brink."

Mansfield would not comment before his speech on the Dulles controversy itself. But the scholarly Montanan said he thinks the time has come for a thorough review of foreign policy.

Ike Offer to Hopeluls is Invitation To Get 'Clobbered' GOP Leader Says

WASHINGTON (U. S. — President Eisenhower's invitation to Republican presidential hopefuls to go into state primaries merely invites them to be "clobbered" by the President himself, a GOP congressional leader said today.

In varying degree this comment reflected a widespread reaction to Mr. Eisenhower's statement Thursday that he will let his name stay in the New Hampshire primary even though he has not yet decided whether to seek a second term.

While there were diverse interpretations of the news conference statement, these general conclusions were apparent:

1. Mr. Eisenhower encouraged state GOP leaders, where they have not already done so, to enter him in more, if not all, of the presidential primaries in the 18 states holding them.

2. Most Democrats construed Mr. Eisenhower's frank remarks about the effect on his health of his September heart attack as fresh evidence that he will not run again. In an earlier announcement from Republicans were divided on this

Eisenhower to Address Salute Rallies Tonight

Will Make Radio-TV Appearance to Help Raise GOP Funds

WASHINGTON (U. S. — President Eisenhower makes his first major public appearance since his heart attack tonight to help the Republican Party raise millions of dollars for the 1956 campaign.

The Chief Executive will be principal speaker at one of hundreds of "Salute to Eisenhower" dinner rallies being staged by the GOP National Finance Committee from coast to coast. The occasion is the third anniversary of Mr. Eisenhower's inauguration.

Mr. Eisenhower will not attend the eating part of the Washington dinner. But he will motor to the Sheraton Park Hotel in time to address fellow Republicans across the country by closed circuit television and over the radio networks on a 30-minute program beginning at 9 p. m. (CST).

Fall Campaign Effort
The President probably will devote most of his eight or 10-minute speech at the end of the program to encouraging a highly active effort by Republicans in the fall campaigns and to thanking the rank- and file GOP members for their support during the past three years.

Mr. Eisenhower was not expected to disclose his own 1956 political intentions. If he discusses his personal future at all, he probably will not go beyond the highly general terms he has employed in news conferences.

The series of "Salute" dinners promised to be one of the most successful one-shot money raising efforts in political history. Party leaders estimated that the dinners, $100 a plate in the major cities, would raise in the neighborhood of five million dollars, half of which will go to the national committee and the rest to state and local GOP organizations.

The closed circuit TV portion of the program will be carried to 49 dinners in major cities; four metropolitan dinners will hear the president over special radio circuits. "Hundreds" of smaller dinners also were planned.

The biggest dinner will be in New York's Madison Square Garden where 16,000 Eisenhower adherents will eat hot suppers of cold lobster and cheese cake, watch an ice show and listen to six choral groups of 1,000 voices.

The Chicago crowd was expected to top 4,500 persons at the International Amphitheater. The Washington party was set for the largest ballroom in town and probably will draw more than 2,000 persons.

Stevenson Petitions to Be Filed Monday; Wright to File in Two Races

SPRINGFIELD (U. S. — Democratic state headquarters reported today that petitions placing former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson's name in the Illinois presidential primary probably will be filed Monday.

Filing of Stevenson's name would put him and President Eisenhower at the top of the Illinois primary ballots. Gov. William G. Stratton entered Eisenhower at the opening of the filing period last Monday.

Douglas Opens Senate Fight Against Gas Bill

WASHINGTON (U. S. — Sen. Paul H. Douglas cautioned his Democratic colleagues today they will lose their claim to a "giveaway" issue against the Republicans if they let the natural gas bill pass Congress.

The Illinois Democrat gave his opinion in preparing to begin what he predicted may be a four-day speech in the Senate against the bill. The measure would exempt independent natural gas producers from direct federal price control.

"This bill is a gigantic giveaway," Douglas said. It would result in a 12 1-2 billion-dollar "windfall" for the producers in increased value of gas reserves and "route" the consumers more than 600 million dollars annually in their gas bills, he said.

Democrats have accused the Eisenhower administration of "giving away" various publicly owned natural resources to private industry. Douglas argued that in agreeing to lift federal regulation of natural gas producers—a move supported by Democratic leaders of both House and Senate—Democrats themselves would be following a "giveaway" policy.

In his prepared speech, Douglas said the bill "would, without justice or reason, add hundreds of millions of dollars a year to the bills of the nation's gas users." If the bill were passed, he said, it is probable that the cost of gas at the wellhead, which now averages about 10 cents per thousand cubic feet, would jump another 10 cents within a year.

Police Guard Witnesses And Officials

Search for 'Chinese Execution' Slayer Centers in 3 States

PRINCETON, Ind. (U. S. — The FBI today entered the search for Leslie Irvin, condemned killer of six.

Police meanwhile guarded officials and trial witnesses with tommy-guns and sawed-off shotguns on the possibility that the escaped killer might seek revenge.

At nearby Evansville, U. S. Commissioner Carl Bosacker issued a warrant at the request of the FBI charging Irvin with unlawful flight to avoid confinement for murder.

The warrant charged that the killer crossed the state line from Indiana to Mount Carmel, Ill., where he is believed to have stolen an automobile during his flight from prison.

Issuance of the warrant enabled the FBI to enter the hunt.

Report Seeing Irvin
Meanwhile, men resembling Irvin were reported seen at Louisville, Ky., and Dayton, Ohio, but authorities anticipated there would be many such reports.

At Dayton, Otha Ray Mack, Springfield, Ala., told deputies two men robbed him of his wallet, suitcase and topcoat. They were driving a green car. Earlier a man answering Irvin's description was seen in a restaurant about 10 miles from Dayton.

At Louisville a police alert was ordered after a man resembling the slayer was seen on a downtown street.

Irvin slipped out of "escape proof" Gibson county jail early Thursday after fashioning two improvised door keys or getting keys from someone outside the jail.

Authorities at first believed Irvin must have had outside help to have lifted the metal plate on the cell door, but deputies said Irvin and his cellmate probably could have done it from within.

Believe Made Keys
Bryant told Sheriff Earl Hollen that Irvin threatened "my friends will get even with you at Michigan City" if he did not help him flee.

Hollen said he believed Irvin "made two jail door keys of his own." But he could not explain how Irvin could make the keys because "there was no metal in his cell."

Police believed Irvin was armed and wouldn't hesitate to kill again, since he has a June date with the electric chair in Indiana State Prison at Michigan City if he is captured.

The manhunt for Irvin spread across the Midwest, with special emphasis on Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky. Indiana and Kentucky are the scenes of his crimes, called "Chinese executions" because he forced his victims to kneel before sending a bullet through the back of their heads.

Police had no positive leads on Irvin's whereabouts, although reports streamed in that he had been seen in the Illinois cities of Watseka, Olney, and Mount Vernon.

City is Terrified
The escape terrified citizens of nearby Evansville, home of two schoolboy members of the junior sheriff's patrol who had linked Irvin's car to the murder of three

Install Cable at Eldorado for Phone Dial System

Installing new cable prior to converting the Eldorado telephone system to dial service has been started by the General Telephone Co. of Illinois.

The project, Exchange Manager M. H. Lynch declared, also will include a modern brick building, fireproof and air-conditioned, to house the Eldorado exchange office and dial equipment.

It is believed that the system will be completed in the early fall. It was learned that engineers are in Harrisburg now making surveys for a dial system in this city. General Telephone Co. has bought the lot on West Church street east of the Pankey bakery and it is assumed that a district telephone building will be erected there.

Sir Anthony's Warning

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

It comes as something of a shock to hear such harsh criticism as has been directed recently against Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden of Britain.

He has been getting it from both sides—the Labor party opposition and some members of his own ruling Conservative party. Sensitive to it, Eden felt compelled to deny that he would resign his post.

Actually, according to the best informed observers, there never has been the slightest prospect of his quitting, nor is the opposition to his stewardship considered truly formidable. But it has been highly vocal.

Conservatives have hammered him for alleged timidity and indecision. Certain leading journals have chided him on the same score.

Laborites have dwelt on the embarrassing disclosure that surplus British tanks have found their way to Egypt and Israel via Belgian and French middlemen.

The reason all this must be set down as a surprise is that for long years Eden seemed a man almost perfectly cut to the pattern of prime minister. His experience, particularly in foreign affairs, was vast. His grasp of vital issues was firm. He had a reputation for courage born partly of his refusal to accept appeasement in the days of Hitler's power.

The accident of history had forced him to dwell long in the shadow of Sir Winston Churchill. But it was widely believed that he would measure up to fullest expectations when his chance came.

Perhaps the long period of "apprenticeship" worked a certain damage on Eden's power of resplendence. For the items now being cited are only the latest in a rather lengthy catalogue that has been compiled since he took office from the aging Sir Winston.

Nevertheless, the respect for him within his own party and within Britain is still far too great for him to be in serious trouble now.

It can be said, however, that the attacks upon him constitute warning. His tenure of office may be briefer than his advocates imagined if the history of the next few months is not marked by signs of a stronger hand.

thing affectionate about Mr. Sam's comments on Ike's administration during a secret caucus of House Democrats the other day. The Texan bluntly declaimed the GOP administration as "100 per cent political."

No administration has been as political or as partisan as this one," Rayburn told his fellow Democrats. "When we Democrats controlled the presidency we consulted with the Republicans on everything—domestic as well as international policies."

"But now that they are in power, they don't consult with us on anything," blazed the Texan. "They run a one-party show on everything, even appointments. In past years, under Democratic presidents, we always saw to it that the Republicans had a say in appointing real Republicans to the bipartisan boards and commissions of the government. But Democrats don't get the same consideration today."

Rayburn seemed particularly irritated about the ousters of Democrats Jim Mead, ex-senator from New York, from the Federal Trade Commission and Josh Lee, ex-senator from Oklahoma, from the Civil Aeronautics Board.

"Jim Mead and Josh Lee were trying to represent the people, but they were fired for their pains," protested Rayburn. "What's more, they and others aren't being replaced by real Democrats on these supposedly bipartisan boards. Instead, to take their places, the Republicans are getting men who register as Democrats but who are Republicans at heart."

Democrats who heard him at the closed-door meeting agreed that they haven't seen "Mr. Sam" wroth since Vice President Nixon and other GOP-ers labeled the Democrats as the "party of treason." He was really steamed up.

"GIVEAWAY" GAS BILL

The president-elect of Brazil, Juscelino Kubitschek, has no idea that he played any part in the hot Senate debate over the regulation of natural gas.

Nevertheless, it was because of him that secret debate inside the Democratic Policy committee was abruptly shut off and it was decided to toss the entire question onto the Senate floor for debate—even if it did split the Democratic party right down the middle.

What happened was that the Policy committee was meeting behind closed doors to decide whether to vote the gas bill out for general discussion. Both sides had put out some eloquent pleas, one of the most eloquent coming from Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois.

"I am not going to discuss this bill on the merits," he told the 11 Democrats who control Senate policy, "though there are plenty of merits I could discuss against it. But I want to talk only from the point of view of politics."

"In 1954 the Democratic party had two issues—the recession and the giveaways.

"Now there is no recession," continued Douglas. "Unless there is some change in the next few weeks, it will not be an issue. And if you vote this bill out, then giveaways won't be an issue, for the Republicans will put the giveaway tag on us. They will claim we gave away natural gas regulation to the big oil and gas companies at the expense of the house."

"Do you think the offshore oil bill hurt the Democrats in 1954?" asked Senator Kerr of Oklahoma, a routin' tootin' booster of the natural gas bill.

"As I recall it," replied Douglas, "the Republicans were in control of Congress at that time and General Eisenhower was elected on a pledge to return offshore oil to the states. Today the Democrats are in control and Eisenhower very carefully refrained from recommending the passage of this bill."

The closed-door debate had now lasted some time. Suddenly word came that the president-elect of Brazil was in the vice president's anteroom waiting to address the Senate. Hastily, in order not to keep him waiting, the Policy committee voted to bring out the natural gas bill as the first item of debate in the new session of Congress. Probably the result would have been the same anyway, but the arrival of President Kubitschek speeded up the decision.

DIPLOMATIC POUCH

Secretary of State Dulles has been grumbling privately against British Prime Minister Eden, who's arriving here at the end of this month. Dulles claims he warned Eden against the Baghdad Pact which has kicked up riots in Jordan and caused the British to fly troops to the Near East. Eden, however, ignored his advice. Dulles complains . . . A special contingent of Russian air force and tank experts has arrived in Communist Czechoslovakia. They will train specially selected Egyptians, flown to Czechoslovakia, to learn how to use Russian planes, tanks and submarines in the Arab states . . . Gen. Nathan Twining, Air Force chief, has told the White House that the Air Force could complete its aerial inspection of Russia in six months—if the President's aerial inspection plan is ever adopted. Twining was summoned to the White House recently to give his views on aerial inspection to Ike and Secretary of State Dulles. Twining pointed out that our fast jet planes, using modern photographic equipment, could photograph all of Russia's key defense areas from the air in half a year . . . The Defense Department is planning to shoot, not one but nine earth satellites into space, beginning next year.

Manhunt Spreads for Condemned Killer

Kentuckians and led to his capture.

Frightened Evansville citizens bought practically every available gun in town. Store owners had to set up waiting lists and there were angry complaints at a state law requiring fingerprints and a one-day waiting period for gun purchases.

Roadblocks surrounded Evansville, site of two of his crimes, and Princeton, but the manhunt appeared to be centering in Illinois.

A nervous man believed to be Irvin was seen in a Watseka, Ill., bar late Thursday night. He bolted out the back door when a police car happened to pull up outside.

Television station WCIA in Champaign, Ill., flashed a United Press facsimile picture of Irvin on its screen and Watseka bartender Joe Thornburg and his customers reported "that's the same man who was in here."

The Watseka development tied in with an earlier stolen car report from Mount Carmel, Ill., situated only 12 miles from Princeton and the home of Irvin's brother. The car has not been recovered and authorities believed Irvin was using it to put distance between him and Princeton.

There were also reports that a man answering Irvin's description boarded a bus at Princeton shortly after the time of the escape and got out at Olney, Ill. At Mount Vernon, Ill., Thursday night, a truck driver thought he saw Irvin trying to thumb a ride.

Irvin's killing spree began in December, 1934, when he murdered an Evansville filling station attendant, W. Wesley Kerr, and a woman who operated a liquor store there. He was sentenced to die last month for the Kerr slaying.

He was accused of killing a Mount Vernon, Ind. farm wife on March 21. Seven days later, it was charged, he went into Kentucky and killed a prominent Henderson area farmer, his son and daughter-in-law.

The motive for all six murders was robbery. But Irvin's blood money totaled only $342.

Education Experts Study Suggestion To Help Solve Building Shortage

CHICAGO (AP)—Education experts today considered a suggestion that may help solve the Illinois shortage of school buildings.

Lester R. Grimm, research director for the Illinois Education Assn., said an Illinois Supreme Court decision indicated a consolidated district need not be limited by the indebtedness of its old districts.

Members of the Illinois School Problems Commission, meeting Thursday, said they might call for legal advice on whether Grimm's interpretation was accurate.

The amount of bonds a school district may issue is limited by the Illinois constitution to 5 percent of the assessed property valuation.

When two districts are merged, a state law provides that their bonded indebtedness must be deducted from the total amount of bonds the new district may issue.

Galatia Loses to Vienna, 64-61, in Semifinals

The Shawneetown Indians will be gunning for their second consecutive Greater Egyptian conference tournament championship and 19th win of the season tonight.

Trying to stop the rampaging Gallatin county crew will be the team from Vienna.

In the semifinal play of the tournament, being played at Ridgway, Shawneetown won from Cave-in-Rock, 62-34, and Vienna beat Galatia, 64-61. The semifinals were played Thursday night.

The tournament closes this evening. At 7 o'clock Galatia and Cave-in-Rock play for consolation honors. About 8:30 the championship game will start.

Cave-in-Rock slowed its game with Shawneetown last night and managed to stay with the Indians for the first half. At the quarter

Shawneetown led 13-12 and at half time the score was tied at 17-all. Then the game began to loosen up and Shawneetown was on top 32-25 after three quarters.

In the final frame the Indians raced to 30 points and held the Rockers to nine, turning the game into a rout. The final score—Shawneetown 62, Cave-in-Rock 34. Drone placed the Indians' scoring with 20 points. Conkrite was tops for Cave with 15.

The second game of the semifinal session was a ding-dong affair with Vienna taking a close 64-61 decision from Galatia.

The two clubs were tied 14-all at the quarter and Galatia held a slim 27-25 halftime advantage. Vienna went out in front by three points, 44-41 after three quarters and both clubs connected for 20 markers each in a thrilling final frame, Vienna holding on to win 64-61.

Penrod counted 11 of Vienna's points in the hectic final period and McFarland kept Galatia alive with 8 points. For the game McFarland had 21 points. Vandell was Vienna's top point maker with 19.

Bull Dogs Play Eagles Tonight at Davenport Gym

The Harrisburg Bull Dogs and the Eldorado Eagles meet tonight for the first time this season in a basketball contest, the game to be played in Davenport gym starting between 8:15 and 8:30.

It will be preceded by a contest between the freshman-sophomore teams of the two schools.

Coach Lawrence Caluffetti's boys will have a hard time stopping the Eldorado crew, headed by husky Lindell Lovellette, who can score. Bob Clark is a nice shot from the outside, too.

Carrier Mills, the third Saline county team in action tonight, travels to Sesser for a contest.

Two South Seven games—Mt. Vernon at Marion and Centralia at West Frankfort—are on tap tonight along with McLeansboro at Lawrenceville.

Saturday night the Bull Dogs travel to Mt. Vernon to tangle with the red-hot Rams, contesting with Herrin for the championship of the South Seven. This contest and West Frankfort at Herrin are loop meetings.

In other Saturday night games Carrier Mills will entertain Norris City and Pinckneyville will travel to Quincy.

Civic Clubs to Play Cage Tourney to Aid March of Dimes

Basketball fans will see all sorts of thrilling action (??), skilled court tactics (??), and deadeye hoop marksmanship (??) next Tuesday night, when Harrisburg civic clubs will engage in a blind draw basketball tourney at Davenport gym for the benefit of the March of Dimes. Reports from the Jaycees, Lions, Rotary, and Kiwanis indicate that a real court thriller is shaping up, with the Jaycees pitting their age and experience against the youth and superior condition of the other three clubs.

The fun will begin at 7:30, and will last as long as the teams can hold out. Sources who can speak with some authority predict that such action will last approximately five minutes.

But for fans who would really like to see some basketball, there will be a feature game between the independent Dairy Brand team, featuring several former HTHS stars, and another independent team still to be chosen.

U. S. Skaters Expected to Win Five Medals

CORTINA, Italy (AP)—Experts watching America's smooth figure skating squad at practice today predicted it would win five Olympic medals—including one by injured Tenley Albright.

They said the U. S. would take the first three places in the men's events and the first two in the ladies' events.

The predictions were made despite an injury suffered Thursday by pretty Miss Albright, the world figure skating champion from Newton, Mass., who cut her right leg while working out. She is expected to be out of action only four or five days.

According to pre-Olympic consensus, Hayes Allen Jenkins, the men's world champion from Colorado Springs, Colo., is picked to win the gold medal while Hayes' brother, David, and Ron Robertson of Long Beach, Calif., are figured to nail down second and third places.

Miss Albright is expected to lead the ladies' category with pretty Carol Heiss of Ozone Park, N. Y., who celebrates her 16th birthday today, a close second.

The accident suffered by Miss Albright was only one of a series. Roy Sherwood of New Canaan, Conn., one of the U. S. top ski jumpers, suffered a possible broken rib when he fell on the first leap off the Olympic hill.

Nikolai Schamov, a Russian skier, sustained cuts and bruises on his face during one of his trial jumps. Italy's slalom champion, Bruno Alberti, twisted his ankle while trying to avoid a spectator. Bobsled practice runs were halted after two brakemen, Heinrich Angst of Switzerland and Andre Donnet of France, were catapulted through the air when their sleds struck a hole in the famed Belvedere curve.

Most manufacturers realize that business is highly competitive and that half-way efforts will get them precisely that far. They believe, for example, in saturating a market with sound

Naturally they use newspapers — because newspapers blanket any market with maximum impact, creating mass action at the retail level.

Smart manufacturers start — and keep — their national advertising at the local level — in newspapers!

It's simple how quickly you may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy — no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful and has a mild laxative effect. Ask your druggist for 4 ounces of liquid RENNEL Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Then take two tablespoonsful twice a day. RENNEL is also available in the 8 ounce regular economy size. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of fat don't seem to disappear from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for a refund. You don't have to starve — eat sensibly per instructions. Ask for free booklet. Follow this easy way endorsed by your Illinois neighbors who have gotten slim with this recipe. Note how quickly bloated disappears — how much better you feel — more alive, youthful appearing and active. See your druggist today for RENNEL.

Nine Southern Illinois Communities Use SIU Plan to Improve Economy

CARBONDALE, Ill.—Nine widely scattered southern Illinois communities, representing upwards of 30,000 people, are now using an identical "do-it-yourself" blueprint to put progress on a stronger foundation.

Applying themselves to the tough job of practical democracy are people of all ages and income levels, of different creeds and color, in towns and rural areas.

Their efforts are entered in the communities of Carlyle, Cobden, Coulterville, Du Quoin, Eldorado, Elizabethtown, Flora, Mounds and Rosiclare—communities that survive by slim farm profits, by industrial employment, or by the benevolence of welfare agencies.

In each of these localities, the goals of civic action are different — economic betterment, social reforms or cultural enrichment—but the procedure in each case is much the same.

Plan Drawn Up By Poston

The master plan of operation covers all cases because it is designed to improve communities from the ground up. The plan was drawn by Richard W. Poston, head of the department of community development at Southern Illinois university.

In the early stages of this development plan are: Carlyle, a conservative and fairly prosperous county seat town, home of Maj. Gen. William Dean, the Korean War's greatest hero; Flora, an active community where "Operation Progress" has been launched to boost citizen morale and bring about concerted action for industrial growth; and Cobden, the peach capital of Illinois and center of the southern Illinois fruit industry.

After residents of these localities study their community problems intensively for six months, they will set to work on practical solutions.

Mounds, a small Pulaski county settlement engaged in the first phase of the program, has already taken several concrete steps toward increasing retail sales. A new street lighting system will be installed in the business district with funds raised by contributions; merchants have been distributing a shopping guide to 3000 homes each week, and 18 merchants are enrolled in a university course in "Sales Step-Up."

Coulterville, a forgotten community which lies near the edge of three counties 45 miles southeast of St. Louis, is also in the study portion of the development plan. A community Christmas party and a style show of locally-manufactured clothing helped enlist civic spirit in behalf of the program, and Coulterville's residents now are talking about a campaign for a new sewer system.

In Du Quoin, Eldorado, Rosiclare and Elizabethtown, where study projects were conducted earlier, consultants from SIU's community development staff are doing follow-up work to help local people with special projects.

Through Eldorado's "Operation Bootstrap," a community art center has been set up where about 55 people are learning to make pottery. The purpose is to give them training in art skills that might eventually be turned to profit.

Eldorado was the first town to undertake the community program after the SIU department directed by Poston was organized more than two years ago. The many accomplishments that came out of this undertaking won for Eldorado the top community service award of the Freedom's Foundation last year.

Adjustments at Rosiclare

Du Quoin has recently completed the shell of a factory building from money raised locally, and the community development program's industrial committee is helping in the search for prospective tenants. The beautification committee landscaped around the new building, and that same body will take the second step this spring in a five-year plan for renovating the city park.

Each of 14 development committees at Du Quoin have at least one specific action project to complete by this summer.

Rosiclare, a "company town," is trying to adjust itself to new conditions brought about by the closing of the big Rosiclare Lead and Fluorspar Mining Co. The company owns the hospital, the municipal lighting system and the community center which local citizens are now seeking to acquire or to replace. Jacob Blechstein, president of the mining company, is chairman of the development program's committee to seek new industry.

Community Leaders Emerge

In each of these towns, the success of community development depends on the efforts of the great bulk of the population, but community leaders are emerging who had never before taken active roles in public affairs.

Among the permanent and temporary program chairmen are: John Oglesby, operator of a Standard Oil bulk station, Flora; Carroll Rich, an insurance man, and H. R. Clutts, a fruit broker, Cobden; Everett Kelley, mining engineer, Coulterville; Warren Hastings, an auto dealer, Mounds; Gene Morris, a druggist, Du Quoin; and William Warren, an attorney, Carlyle.

There is as much variety of occupation among the university consultants working with each town. Since this particular approach to helping communities help themselves has little precedent, there is no formal educational training for "community developers."

Specialists on Staff

Poston, the director of the SIU department, studied botany in college. Others on his staff include: John Barnes, who holds a doctor's degree in education; Dan Tanner, a Ph.D. and a former high school teacher of biological sciences; Bert Jones, formerly an education specialist with the Illinois Department of Public Health; Alice Beardslee, an education specialist who used to work for a labor union; Van Seagraves, an economist; Carl Harm, a social worker; Frank Sehnert, a rural sociologist; and Eugene Bunker, a prize-winning ceramics artist.

Helping the consultants are three students from Antioch college, Ohio, a liberal arts school which requires its students to divide their time between studies and full employment. The Antioch students rotate at Southern—a different trio being assigned to the community development staff each term.

53 Per Cent of Johnston City Workers Hold Jobs in Other Localities

CARBONDALE, Ill.—Fifty-three percent of the employed residents of Johnston City, Ill., commute to jobs in other towns, according to a study reported in the winter issue of the Southern Illinois Business Bulletin.

The study, conducted by Dallas Price and William B. Sanders, revealed that 80 percent of Johnston City residents working in manufacturing and 100 percent of the working coal miners had jobs in other localities.

"Actually, service, trade and educational services are the only employment categories which are predominantly local in nature," said the authors.

Price, an associate professor of geography at Southern Illinois University, and Sanders, a former student and a Johnston City resident, arrived at their findings through local interviews. The Business Bulletin in which the article appears is published by the University.

The authors called Johnston City a "dormitory city" — one which provides living facilities, trade and

Smoothest thing in the whole ride world

If you think most of today's new cars ride pretty well—you're right. They do.

But we think the 1956 Buick ride has them all beat. And we'll tell you why.

In the whole wide world, no other car combines the wealth of features that bring you Buick's solid and level buoyancy of ride.

Some of these great features you may know about—like the coil springing at all four wheels to soften and gentle your going—

And the rigid, full-length torque-tube drive that puts solid checkrein on rear-end sway and slew —

And the massive X-braced frame with the solidity of steel girders for weave-proof firmness.

But Buick engineers added to these basics to bring you an even greater Buick ride for 1956.

They designed a whole new chassis of extra brawn and heft and solidity.

They devised big new direct-action shock absorbers that snub out jars and jolts with triple the oil volume of former ones.

They came up with new center-groove brakes — put a sharp new precision response into the steering — gifted this beauty with a new cornering stability and a phenomenal "sense of direction."

They worked out a new power train, too, for this ride.

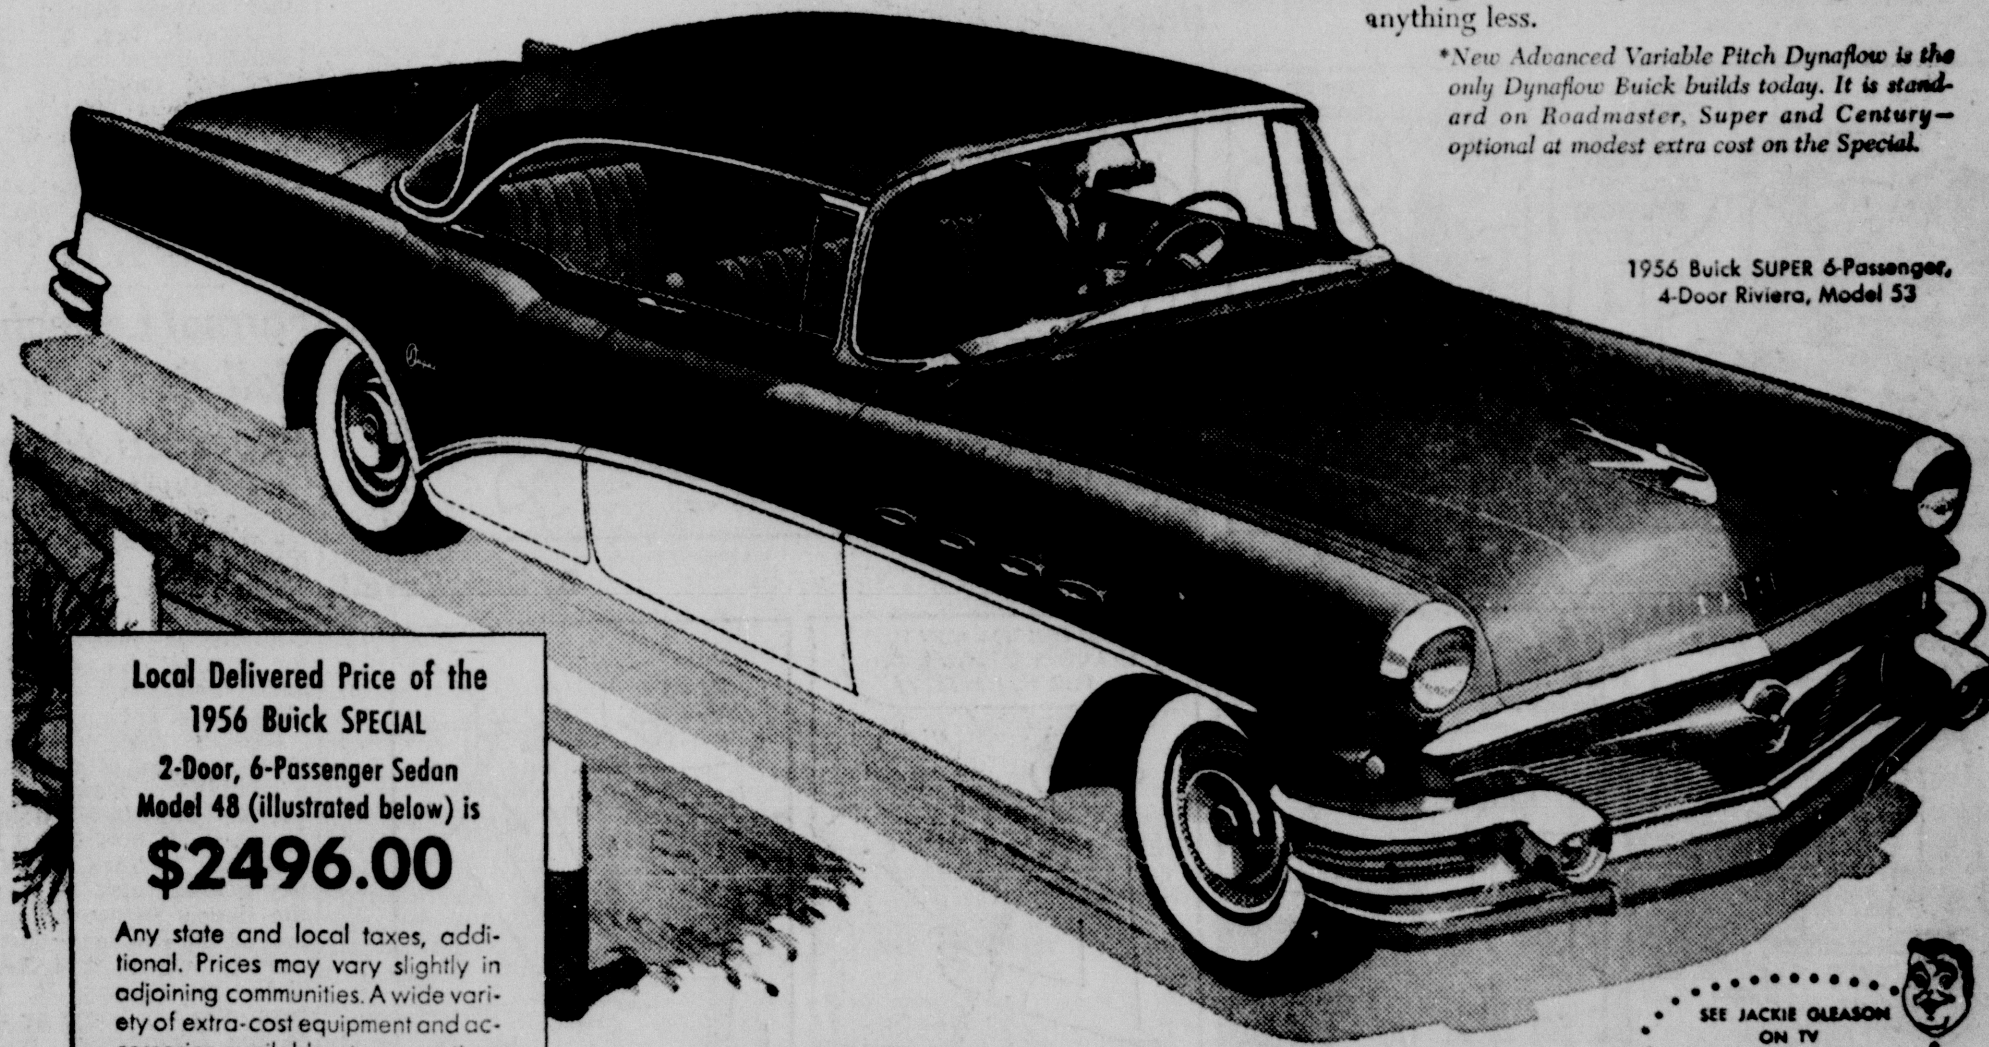

Now, transmitting the purring might of big new 322-cubic-inch V8 engines, lofted to new highs in power and compression, there's the smoothness of an advanced new Variable Pitch Dynaflo* that silks your whole ride like no other transmission yet developed.

What it all adds up to is the sweetest, the smoothest, the steadiest, the greatest ride yet. And the proof is waiting for you at the wheel of a '56 Buick—right now.

Come in this week and take your seat. You have nothing to lose—but you sure can be spoiled for anything less.

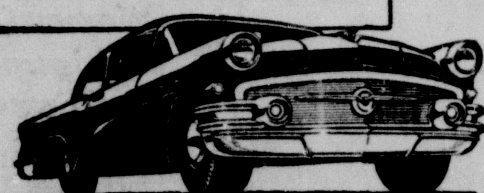

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

22 Dead in Czech Airliner Crash

VIENNA (AP)—The official Czech Communist news agency Cetecka announced today that 22 persons were killed and four others injured seriously when a Czech commercial airliner crashed in the Tatras Mountains last Wednesday. The announcement said the commercial airliner crashed about seven miles from the village of Torsyk in Slovakia.

The Communist agency said a committee of the Ministry of Transport was sent to the scene of the crash to investigate the reasons for the accident.

Cetecka officials reached in Prague by telephone from Vienna said they had no further information on the crash and did not know if any foreigners were among the victims.

UN Condemns Israel for Attack On Syrian Post

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Censure of Israel by the United Nations Security Council heightened tension between Israel and Syria today and both nations hinted they may reopen the issue.

Israel, on the receiving end of unanimous condemnation by the 11-nation group for its attack on a Syrian outpost, looked anxiously to Washington for the effect the censure would have on the Tel Aviv government's request for $5 million dollar's worth of American arms.

Officials in Washington said the U. N. action would postpone a U. S. decision on the Israeli arms bid.

Israeli Ambassador Abba S. Eban served notice that Syria had no rights on the Sea of Galilee where the Dec. 11 raid took place and that it is "disquieting" to hear that Syria "thinks it has a right to intrude."

Syrian Ambassador Ahmed Shukeir before the council its demands kairy said his government would for sanctions against Israel and payment of compensation for the raid, "to be invoked at the appropriate time."

Long before the Galilee raid, in which 56 Syrians and 6 Israelis died, Israel had asked the United States to sell it arms to offset Communist armament shipments to Egypt. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles held the request in abeyance, promising to "take a new look" at it after the Security Council acted on the Galilee incident.

and that calls came from 17 states including Florida, Minnesota, Connecticut, Delaware, Texas, Pennsylvania, Alabama, Louisiana and New Mexico. The New Mexico call, he said, was from a former West Frankfort resident who heard the broadcast in his auto at Carlsbad, where he now resides, and hurried home to make the call.

Tests will be made for four or five nights, Duncan stated, after which the station will begin regular broadcasts under the increased power.

Retired Woman Doctor Dies At Effingham

EFFINGHAM, Ill. (AP)—A woman doctor who was a long-time consultant to the Chicago Board of Education died here Thursday night.

Dr. Evelyn Young, 79, had been hospitalized for about three months before her death. She and her sister, Dr. Mildred Young, had retired to Effingham about two years ago.

Dr. Evelyn Young was born near Dexter and taught school in southern Illinois after graduation from Eastern Illinois State College.

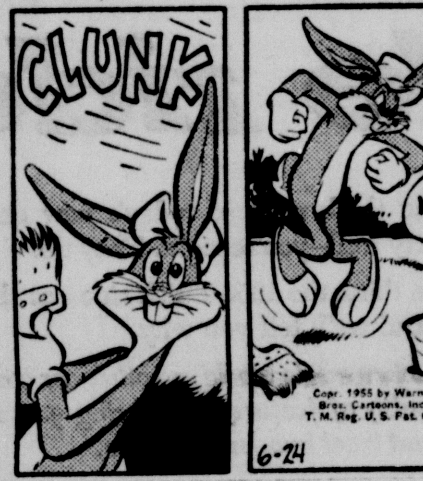

She later went to Chicago for medical study and received her medical degree in 1913 and entered private practice. A short time later she agreed to do special work for the Chicago Board of Education and remained with the board as a medical consultant until her retirement.

President to Hear Demands to Hike Pork Buying

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will meet with Iowa's congressional delegation Monday to hear demands for stepped-up government pork buying to bolster hog prices.

Rep. Henry O. Talle, spokesman for the all-Republican delegation said the conference was set for 8:30 a. m. CST.

The Iowa delegation had asked for the meeting with the President and Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson in the wake of Benson's promise to increase the pace of the pork purchase program.

However, Asst. Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz told United Press today the pork program is not likely to be expanded much beyond its originally announced $5-million-dollar goal, although virtually unlimited funds are available.

This did not contradict Benson's assertion that the rate at which the government is currently buying pork would be increased. Butz said that the amount that can be given away to school lunch programs and needy people-estimated when the buying started last November at 170 million pounds of pork and 30 million pounds of lard.

These estimates may be raised by the development of new outlets, but not to any great degree, Butz said.

Purchases to date include 56,361,000 pounds of canned pork and 30,955,000 pounds of lard at a cost of about 38 million dollars.

Census Bureau Reports Gain in Number Of U. S. Businesses

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Commerce Department reported today that the number of U. S. businesses totaled 4,225,000 in mid-1955, a gain of 45,000 in the first six months of last year.

The largest gain—3.12 per cent—occurred among contract construction firms which numbered 457,100 on June 30.

The report said that all major categories, except manufacturing, showed increases. Wholesale businesses and those in service industries reached new highs, it said.

Group Reports New Evidence Of Reds in Gov't

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Un-American Activities Committee said today its investigations last year unearthed "important new evidence" of Communist activity in government, entertainment and other key fields.

Its annual report to the House said it had found evidence of 10 previously undisclosed Communist cells in both the executive and legislative branches of government.

It also learned, it said, that party members still are working in the entertainment industry in New York despite efforts to keep them out.

The committee said it also uncovered:

Communist efforts to "indoctrinate and disaffect" youth through party-operated summer camps and otherwise.

Subversive activity through "neighborhood" Communist clubs in the New York area.

Attempted Red infiltration of labor and professional groups in the Newark, N. J., area.

Use of union members' dues in Indiana and Michigan for Communist purposes.

"Massive new evidence" of party activity in southern California from 1928 through 1954.

The committee said the 10 previously undisclosed party cells it turned up were operated in the National Labor Relations Board and other government agencies, and in a Senate interstate commerce subcommittee.

The committee said its inquiry on Communists in the entertainment world established that "radio and television networks continue to use the talents of Communist Party members" because of inadequate information and investigative facilities.

It said the networks also have no control over "package" shows—those written, cast and directed under the supervision of advertising agencies.

"The committee found that through these package shows, Communist Party members and apologists have been sent into the living room of the American home," the report said.

$471 Million Tax Collections in State During 1955

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Collections from Illinois' major tax sources approached the half billion dollar mark during the calendar year 1955, State Revenue Director Richard J. Lyons reported today to Governor William G. Stratton.

The December figure of $44,061,134 in tax collections raised the total for the year to $471,367,974, a boost of $4,173,550 over the preceding year.

While aggregate December collections were up $7,763,311 over November, three taxes showed declines. These were the liquor tax, which dropped $346,026, cigarette tax, which fell $8,336, and the coin-operated amusement device tax, which declined $1,534.

The biggest revenue producer, the state sales tax, brought in $235,717,894 in 1955, an increase of $34,739,583 over 1954. The tax went from two cents to two and one-half cents on July 1.

Four months collections from the new use tax on out-of-state purchases, which went into effect Aug. 1, amounted to $2,834,439.

Total 1955 collections from the other sources follow:

Cigarette tax, $31,473,071, up $892,326; liquor tax, $24,839,687, up $1,268,442; motor fuel tax, $143,682,019, up $1,122,107; petroleum inspection fees, $336,272, up $51,809; public utility tax, $30,932,595, up $2,253,662; coin-operated amusement device tax, $335,500, down $22,857, and private car line tax, $566,497, up $36,038.

Formal Launching of Toll Road Program Expected Monday

CHICAGO (AP)—The stage was being set today for the formal launching of the Illinois toll road program Monday.

After almost two years of delays, the Illinois Toll Highway Commission finally was preparing for completion of a 415-million-dollar bond issue to finance construction of 193 miles of turnpikes.

Lawyers were working to clear away a mass of red tape before a deadline of Monday for delivering the bonds to a nationwide syndicate of 565 investment houses.

George McGurn, assistant attorney general, said he was satisfied the Illinois Supreme Court had removed the last legal obstacle Wednesday when it ordered State Treasurer Warren E. Wright to turn over any bonds he might hold to the commission.

Woman Climbs Into Refrigerator To Commit Suicide

CHESTER, Ill. (AP)—A coroner's jury ruled Thursday night a Chester woman committed suicide by climbing into her refrigerator and closing the door.

The body of 68-year-old Mrs. Tillie Welge was found Wednesday night. She had written several notes indicating she planned to take her life. She emptied the refrigerator and pulled out the shelves. Then she climbed in and pulled the door closed.

Authorities said Mrs. Welge had been mentally depressed ever since her husband died last year.

The committee said the 10 previously undisclosed party cells it turned up were operated in the National Labor Relations Board and other government agencies, and in a Senate interstate commerce subcommittee.

The committee said its inquiry on Communists in the entertainment world established that "radio and television networks continue to use the talents of Communist Party members" because of inadequate information and investigative facilities.

It said the networks also have no control over "package" shows—those written, cast and directed under the supervision of advertising agencies.

"The committee found that through these package shows, Communist Party members and apologists have been sent into the living room of the American home," the report said.

That night when Kau went below he took the Bowditch, the Daboll Traverse Tables and the Nautical Almanac from the bulkhead rack, the log board from the companionway peg. A number of Bothwick's problems were in a sheaf in the back of the Bowditch and he put them on the table and tried to explore through them.

They made no sense. His limited knowledge of written English added to his confusion, and the extent of his mathematics was the simple arithmetic he had learned from the mate of the missionary schooner. What was on the pages led through mysteries vastly beyond his ability to comprehend.

Despair grew into disgust, then rage at himself. He stumbled off to his cabin and lay sleepless in the bunk while columns of figures writhed in a grotesque serpentine before his eyes and the strange-sounding words reverberated like the waves that struck the ship-side.

He returned the next night, though, and every night for a week. Some glint of understanding reached him when he copied off the courses of the day's run from the log board on the sixth night. Those had meaning to him because their origin was directly traceable to the actual sailing of the ship. Still the meaning of leeway in the manner that it was applied to find the true course was incomprehensible until he had written out one of Bothwick's problem completely and substituted the figures on the log board.

Clarity arrived fast. He redid the problem and then several others. The tension eased in his stomach and the headache left him. He had the temptation to sing, to shout, and he called out softly in triumph, "Oh, mantissa! Most beautiful mantissa! You are my shipmate now, my taio, my great, true friend!"

But he was reticent about entering the results of his problem in the logbook.

"Plenty for tonight," he told himself. "Get some sleep. For a time, you thought that your skill was going to crack like an old coconut. But tomorrow night you can take the sextant and look at the stars. You will be a navigator, a real mate. Yes, this Mister Mantissa is a fine fellow..."

The following night was clear if savagely cold, with many stars showing, and he couldn't restrain the desire to handle the sextant. It was the only instrument of its kind in the ship, he realized as he went down into the main cabin for it. Harm this and you put the ship in bad trouble.

Jaeger, a gaunt man with a farmer's stoop in his shoulders, was at the wheel, bored with steering and lost in some distant retrospection. He didn't look up from the binnacle as Kau passed him going toward the leeward side. Kau braced against the rail, his knees bent, his feet flat to the deck in the heavy leather boots. A second and magnitude star not known to him by name was visible to the northwest. He lifted the sextant and trained it and the star grew blue and large.

You're close to it, he thought. But now you must bring the star down to the horizon by moving the thing here that's called the index arm, after that the tangent screw. Don't mind the wind.

When the sea rose astern and came flinging at the counter he had just again recaptured the star. His body answered subconsciously to the roll and compensated for the deck he had betrayed him. They slipped along the moist planks and he had both hands raised to the sextant. He felt stiffly outboard, head-down, and before the water took him he had time for no more than a grunting shout.

He thought that he would die at once in the water. It compressed his body within a cold that went to the marrow. But he clung to the sextant, and as he pushed to the surface he did his best to keep it up and out in the air. His boots filled; his clothing dragged him down, and with the second immersion he was aware that he must get rid of them. He maintained the sextant in his right hand while he cleared his knife and slashed and cut and wrenched, shifted it to his left boot and the clothing on the left side of his body.

A wave surge pounded him as he once more made the surface, but now he was able to tread water, restore some of his breathing. Hurry, Jaeger. Hurry. I'm about to go. He opened his mouth in sheer reaction to the agony of the cold and screamed.

The boat was rowed by three men with Alfie in the bow, Beedle midships and Bothwick at the steering sweep. It loomed very white in the dark night and against the blue-black sea. Alfie called out to him and sprang up and threw a line to him.

He hung on while Alfie and then Beedle hauled and Bothwick brought the boat in along the waves down-wind.

"Come take the sweep, Alfie," Bothwick said. "Hold her pointed to the wind till I tell you." Bothwick moved forward in the boat and squatted down beside Kau. He had his pea jacket off, button-

The vessel was reported trying to make port despite a hole in her starboard side.
An air defense spokesman who contacted the tower, some 100 miles off the Atlantic Coast, by telephone said that none of the 82 officers and enlisted men stationed at the radar observation post had been injured.

"There is no danger of the tower falling into the sea," he said.
He said the weather at the scene was "not bad" but the Coast Guard reported four to seven-foot seas whipped by 14 mile per hour north-easterly winds. It said visibility was limited by snow and rain.

Illinois Man Indicted for Slaying Minister
DANVILLE, Ill. — Hardy G. Wilson, 63, Georgetown, was indicted by the Vermilion county grand jury Thursday for murder in the shotgun slaying of Elder Carl Lewis, 29, pastor of the "Israel of God Church of the White Horse Army," Danville.

Lewis was killed Dec. 7 and police found his body in the churchyard. Police said Wilson and Lewis had argued over taking up the church collection.

In other cases, three drivers of vehicles involved in accidents resulting in deaths were indicted for reckless homicide. They were Eugene Seiler, 19, Chanute Air Force Base airman; James Reese, 42, Danville, and Gilbert Garcia, 19, Hoopston migrant farm worker.

Dulles to Visit Korea

Study Shows Hazards from Nuclear Blasts Insignificant at Present Rate

WASHINGTON — A hitherto secret worldwide study has disclosed that most of the radioactive contamination from a powerful H-bomb test drifts around the globe "for some 10 years" before settling.

Even so, the hazard to mankind from nuclear explosions at the present test rates "is insignificant." In terms of energy release, tests would have to be stepped up 100 or possibly 1,000 fold to constitute a danger.

These conclusions were voiced by Atomic Commissioner Willard F. Libby in a speech at Evanston, Ill., Thursday night in which he partially unveiled the secret study, labeled "Project Sunshine."

Libby's address was an argument that nuclear tests, like the U. S. H-bomb experiments scheduled for this spring in the Pacific, do not constitute a serious danger to humanity.

He said enough weapons to be explosively equal to 11 billion tons of TNT would have to be set off before the most dangerous radioactive by-product element, strontium-90, would reach world levels greater than the "maximum permissible concentration."

That tonnage figure, he said, "is very far in excess of the total energy released to date."

Senate GOP Scraps Part of Farm Program
By United Press
Senate Republicans rejected part of the administration's new farm program today.

They scrapped an administration proposal to sell government-owned surplus crops at market prices to help finance a soil bank program.

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.), ranking GOP member of the Senate Agriculture committee, said such sales "would nullify the purpose of the whole" program which is designed to bolster sagging farm income.

Other congressional news:
Warships: A House Armed Services subcommittee approved a bill to lend Brazil two U. S. submarines for a five-year period.
Industrial Giants: Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), who conducted a recent investigation of General Motors' impact on the nation's economy, claimed at a House committee hearing that the giant firm is operating a "collectivist state." Its managers, he said, for all practical purposes are "dictators."

Foreign Policy: Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) told the Senate the Eisenhower administration has not produced "one major new approach" to world peace during the last three years and the nation has been living "on borrowed time." He said a needed "review and reappraisal" has been brought about, intentional or not, by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' controversial "brink of war" interview.

Mansfield and Sen. John J. Sparkman (D-Ala.), both members of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, called for a great debate on the foreign policy issue.

Thieves Steal Swiss Truck With $280,000

GENEVA, Switzerland — — Police sent out a five-vehicle alert today for a casual set of thieves who made off with a pickup truck containing $280,000 in gold bullion while its lone driver slipped coffee in a restaurant.

Theft of the 250 kilograms (550 pounds) of gold from the ungarded truck was believed to have been the largest such haul in European history. The robbery occurred in broad daylight on a busy street.

Swiss police officials notified international police organizations and police of Italy, France, Germany and Austria set up screens along their borders with Switzerland to try and intercept the quarter-ton of bullion.

"An international dragnet has been spread in an effort to catch the men who committed the crime," a Swiss police spokesman said. "We have alerted all border points."

The truck, a simple pickup truck without armor, was recovered in a Geneva suburb shortly after the robbery. It was empty.

The driver had been sent to the airport to pick up 10 heavy boxes which had been shipped by Air France from Paris Thursday to Geneva transport firm of H. Ritschard. Ritschard was to deliver some of the gold to a local client, presumably a bank, and ship the rest elsewhere in Switzerland.

Geneva Chief of Police Charles Knecht said the driver knew that he was carrying a gold cargo, but he had handled so many shipments no reason to behave differently.

The thieves struck during the height of the rush hour later Thursday but no one noticed them and they apparently left no clues. They simply got in the truck and drove away. The driver notified police of the theft and they soon learned of the valuable cargo aboard.
